

Humor recount

It all started when I slept in front of 200 people and they started laughing at me and pointing at me with hilarious laughs towards me.

I was embarrassed so I ran away from the place, I went to the mall to get something, I bought a burger, I dropped it-but thank God nobody saw me just the waiter and the cashier I was embarrassed but it passed in peace moment.

I was going home but at the street and from nowhere I heard a thing popping from the car I did not care that much but it kept going and I was annoyed from the sound, I kept going in my way when my mam called me to ask me something “hey hello son where are you?” I’m on my way going back home. Okay, hurry up, the food will be ready in 10 min. Okay, I’m on my way, the popping sound kept and the sound was become louder, then, after a second, the tier exploded.

I called my mam to tell her that the tier explode and I can’t get on time, I went to the car repair shop, I fixed the flat tier but when the paying time came, I remembered that I spent the money I had.

Everyone looked at me; I was embarrassed from them and from myself so I went to a corner and called my dad to come and bring me money. He told me ok I’m coming then I waited for him 8 minutes when he came and payed for the tier. Finally, I’m back home I was very hangry, ok mom, hurry up because our neighbors and your family are coming. After 15 mints, everybody came and we eat together. I don’t know why when I started to eat the spoon slipped out my hand and the food dropped on the floor, my mom came and cleaned the room. Some laughed at me but it was okay even it was embarrassing, I was very cool and I did not care about it.